Welcome & Opening Remarks

Ground Floor, Auditorium

The global strategic context at the time of the Summit is instability and uncertainty. This presents challenges for everybody involved in multi-national sports events who have to navigate this uncertainty, articulate the power of sport and inevitably justify the costs at a time when some claim there are other national priorities. This is an opportunity to understand the EU strategy relating to sport and sports events for all delegates to reflect how this can influence their own thinking and to inform a lively debate over the next 2 days of the Summit.

Petros Mavromichali, Ambassador of the European Union

09:25 -
10:05

Event Hosting ROI - Why is this such a contentious issue of frequent different definitions between Cities and Rights Holders? The City perspective

Ground Floor, Auditorium

Rights Holders need financial and organisational support to host their events and Cities need to justify the financial costs and the potential risks. This has led to a reluctance to host or even withdraw once having secured the right to host in some cases. This session will focus on different City "ROI" justification models to share best practice for other City delegates. It will also provide insights for Rights Holders and those seeking to provide innovative solutions. This is the first contribution to one of the major themes of the Summit.
